Word of Locker Frog’s discovery spread rapidly throughout Fairview Middle School. By that afternoon, the hallway behind the auditorium was packed with spectators. Principal Mellon, leaning on a sledge hammer, was chatting with Superintendent Chase and Ms Williams near the dusty sealed-off door. A chorus of muffled Arrrroop! Arrrroop! Arrrroop! echoed through the corridor.

“What did I miss?” asked Charles, appearing behind Jamie.

“Charles,” Jamie replied. “I thought you were home sick. This is all my fault. I’m sorry I didn’t listen to you.”

“What are you talking about?”

“You warned me not to tell nobody about Locker Frog,” said Jamie, but Charles looked clueless. “You called the school when you couldn’t reach me on the walkie. We spoke on the phone a few hours ago.”

“I do not recall any of that,” Charles replied. “Wait, who is that?”

He was staring at a woman neither of them had seen before. She appeared to be a teacher, and from the look in Charles’s I, he would love to be in her class. His trance was broken by the sound of principal Mellon’s sledge hammer smacking into the door.

Arrrroop! Arrrroop! Arrrroop! Arrrroop!

Dozens of Locker Frogs spilled out of the hole in the dusty old door. The crowd squealed. Superintendent Chase tried to snatch one of the hopping specimens. Jamie pushed forward to try to get a peek behind the door. As the Locker Frogs descended upon Fairview Middle School, Charles just gazed at Ms. Martinez, his newfound teacher crush.
